

Richard Griffith, Ph.D.

Richard Griffith is the Executive Director of The Institute for Cross Cultural Management at the Florida Institute of Technology. Dr. Griffith has lived and worked in more than 30 countries. He provides coaching in global leadership and executive presentations, specializing in presentations conducted abroad. He is the Associate Editor of the European Journal of Psychological Assessment and the editor of "Leading Global Teams", "Critical Issues in Cross Cultural Management" and "Internationalizing the Organizational Psychology Curriculum". He is the author of over 100 publications, presentations, and book chapters in the area of assessment. Dr. Griffith has a decade of funded research expertise with the Department of Defense examining the assessment and development of cross-cultural competence (3C), and is currently consulting with the US Army Special Forces to evaluate 3C in qualification course candidates. He has led the effort to design, construct, and operate the world's first culturally competent airport in Orlando. His work has been featured in Time magazine and The Wall Street Journal.

